Before looking to adopt Australian Labradoodle puppies North Carolina dog lovers should first make sure they meet its specific needs.

What originally started as a straight cross between a Standard or Miniature Poodle and a Labrador Retriever in 1980's Australia Cheap Willie McGee Jersey , was further developed into a very special breed which bears the desirable characteristics of several other dogs including the American and English Cocker Spaniels, Curly Coat Retriever, and Irish Water Spaniel.

They have a medium stature, with heights ranging from 17 to 24 inches tall, and weighing between 30 and 75 pounds. Standard sized dogs are larger than miniatures. The dog's coat can be curly or wavy and either a full color or mix of shades such as black, cream, gold, silver Cheap Bob Gibson Jersey , tan, chocolate, red, chalk, apricot, and apricot cream.

Around the age of ten and fifteen months, the Australian Labradoodle's coat will change from that of a puppy to an adult coat. Dogs who shed will naturally lose this first coat, whereas non-shedding types will need to have it trimmed away by a groomer to avoid matting. They need to be trimmed two or three times each year and brushed every week. This breed is low-odor and does not require frequent bathing Cheap Stan Musial Jersey , but they should have their ears cleaned every week to prevent infections.

Due to their high intelligence, this breed learns readily and is not hard to train. They are very intuitive and can easily read people's emotions, but it is necessary for their masters to establish themselves as pack leader early on, or the dog may attempt to outsmart them. Usually they get along well with other dogs and make a fun and gentle playmate for children.

The Australian Labradoodle is an energetic and active dog that needs sufficient daily exercise. This can be obtained by letting them play in a fenced yard, running about and playing games of fetch and such, but they should also be walked several times every day. They also love water and are good swimmers that are happy to play in a pool with their owners.
